The ice cream parlors and soft drink emporiums are quite popular places but the court house park is the one locality that catches the crowd these hot days and warm, dry evenings. Fully one hundred persons were resting, reading and visiting there at one time last Sunday afternoon.

Yes, the park is a beauty spot and the more shame it is that visitors allow it to become littered up with lunch boxes, tobacco tins and waste paper. Also it would seem needless that a pair of ladies cast-off hose should appear among the rubbish.

By the way, has it ever occurred to you that it might be a good thing to have the park lighted up at night—at least the fore part? Think it over; it wouldn't cost the city much to do that.

Although the park is a restful place it might become rather tiresome as a subject for conversation after a time. Let's quit.

They do say that putting two and together makes four. Also that is one way to reach a conclusion.

The good old Hoosier state is quite lucky this year in the number of national candidates selected from within her borders; one candidate for president and two for vice president.

One might wonder a little whether Candidate Hanly expect to play the St. John trick of 1884 this year. There's no telling what a highly conscientious man will do for the sake of principle.

So many people mistake prejudice for principle, and some would rather chase an ideal than achieve practical results.

Of course, a nomination for the presidency would not hurt a chauntauqua lecturer very much. In fact, it might help him to secure dates and to fill his pockets. And everybody knows that is a practical thing.

A gentleman by the name of Peacock is a candidate for a Kansas state office but because his front name is George we opine that he is none of our kin. There are other indications that point in the same direction; the town he hails from and the horse he rides.

It is the law of compensation that we get out of anything about what we put into it. If you have lost interest in any good proposition it may be because you have withdrawn your capital. The simple piece you have wrought upon is more intensely interesting to you than the finished product of skilled labor, and there is a peculiar satisfaction in hard and successful work which cannot be bought or achieved in any other way than by that same hard work. Virtue is its own reward.
